

CARSON DAY AT THE FAIR

Many Vistors from the Capital City and Other Towns.

Exciting Horse and Bicycle Races--Pavilion Exhibit.

YESTERDAY was the great day of the fair. There was a sea of faces in the pavilion. Crowds swarmed around the betting booths and a quarter of a mile of vehicles were stretched along the track.

Nearly two thousand people passed through the gates. All were not from Reno. Fifty came from Virginia and nearly three times that many from Carson. A large detachment was up from Wadsworth and a similar number from Verdi, while people drove in long distances from the country side.

The day opened fair and calm, but before the races began there arose a wind which filled the eyes of the spectators with dust and caused slower time in the horse and bicycle races.

The stock parade was one of the opening features of the day. Col. Marzen and John Sparks each exhibited large herds of thoroughbred, Herefords and short horns.

The bicycle races were interesting events. The one that probably attracted more people to the grounds than anything else was the mile match race between Jack Wing and W. A. Keddie.

The Carson people were there to root for Wing and the local wheelmen were pinning their faith to long legged Keddie.

It was a loading race with changing of pace and had settled down to a wait for the home stretch and a big heart-bursting sprint at the finish. When the last turn had been made Wing gave a jump, but was caught by the local man, their wheels lapping. Hitherto the race had been a satisfactory one for Reno and there was little doubt but that Keddie's wonderful sprinting powers would enable him to win easily by a couple of wheels' lengths.

But Wing, who was in the lead, did something that awoke a roar of indignation in the grand stand. Instead of keeping in the beaten path, he cut off to the edge of the soft ground. Keddie's wheel was on the inside and he had the alternative of checking up and losing the race or continue the inside track, which was carrying him through deep sand and over hummocks of alfalfa that threatened to dismount him at any moment. Wing hugged the edge of the beaten track until he passed under the wire and Keddie was beaten by five feet.

The judges were all Reno men, so instead of declaring the race lost on a foul and ruling Wing off the track, which the rules instruct them to do in such a case, they declared the heat off and directed it to be run over. Keddie was perfectly willing to this, but the California rider refused to try conclusions with the local rider.

Scores of people went out to look at the tracks, which proved that the Reno rider has been played foul.

The five mile handicap was a close and exciting race. Jim Hart, Stanley and Thompson were scratch men. Mershon was given 50 yards; J. Peckham, G. Johnson and G. Kornmeyer, 300; Will Hart and Alf Peckham, 350; B. Frazer and Art Peckham, 400. Hart crossed the tape first, with Jim Peckham a close second and Thompson third. The time was 12:45.

The third race was a quarter mile dash. The first heat was run by Jim Hart and Peckham. The former won. Keddie beat O. Peckham in the second tryout heat. In the third Mershon beat Will Hart. Will Thompson, Art Peckham and Kornmeyer ran the last tryout. The last named won.

The winners of each heat now rode the final. Keddie was the speediest; Mershon was second and Jim Hart third.

Now came the race between six University riders and six wheelmen. As a matter of fact all belonged to the wheelmen.

There were six relays of two miles each. Mershon beat O. Peckham. Thompson won from Stanley. Jim Peckham defeated Johnson. Art Peckham was out-ridden by Jim Hart. Will Hart out pedaled Barney Frazer and Keddie came in ahead of Kornmeyer, giving the laurels to the University.

The fastest relay was ridden by Jim Hart in 5:11.

The first horse race billed for the day did not come to pass on account of a sufficient number of horses failing to enter.

The next was 6 1-2 furlongs for a purse of $200. Roulette Wheel was the winner. Muncie arrived second and Silver Maid third. The time was 1:24.

The next race was the event of the day in equine attractions. It was a run of a mile and a sixteenth for the Owl purse of $500.

Over half an hour was spent at the post. An effort was made to get an even start, but the horses either misbehaved naturally, or were made to do so. At all events, the patience of two thousand people was nearly at an end when the flag waved. All the horses but one traveled in a bunch. Sylvan Lass won by a short neck. Montelade was second and Wing took third money.

The last attraction was a four and a half furlong dash for $150. Blanche Shepherd won with Glendennin second and Lady Norwin third.

The judges yesterday were Warren Noteware, Senator Westerfield and J. R. Bradley. A. B. Uplike officiated as judges' clerk.

A word of praise must be said for Hoskins' Virginia City Band. Between its selections on the brass it gives orchestral music.

Following are the entries for today: Race No. 1—Running, three-quarter mile, purse $225, Jarrillette D'O'R, St. Anthony, Skirmish, Ledostur and Wing.

Race No. 2—Running, six and one-half furlongs, purse $250; Sylvan Lass, Coming Event and Roulette Wheel. Race No. 3—Consolation, purse $250, Montelade, Linber Jim, Sea Spray, The Prince, Whaleback and Tormentor.

In this race money will be at the stake for every horse in front. This race is for horses that have started and not won at this meeting. The money will be divided as follows: First quarter, 10 per cent; half mile, 20 per cent; three quarters 30 per cent; mile 40 per cent.

A liberal subscription was collected yesterday for a cow boy contest. There will practice in lasso throwing, picking objects from the ground and other feats.

Many Visitors from Carson Yesterday.

Among yesterday's visitors from Carson, the following named were noticeable: Senator Livingston and family, Sam Davis, D. Circe and wife, Gilbert Briggs, W. C. Noteware and wife, Eugene Howell, D. M. Ryan, W. MacKay, Hon. Sam Platt, Editor Smith of the Weekly, Mrs. Millard, Mrs. Charles Schulz, the Misses Ida and Venie Roberts, Samuel Cohn, Abe Cohn and family, William Wilson, Mr. Easton, Jack Wing, P. Elmer, John Epstein, Mrs. Saffell, Mrs. Wildes, J. Weber, John Wagner and John Wilson.

Closing of the Engagement.

The Elleford Company has simply smashed all previous records at the McKissick Opera House. No other company could play for one week and commencing with Monday night have the entire house sold out for the entire week.

There is of course a cause for all this, and that is, Mr. Elleford has always hitherto kept his word with the theatre goers of Reno. This season his repertoire, which is the most expensive of any company en route, is the finest that has ever been produced here.

At the matinee this afternoon "The American Girl" will be given with those clever tots, Baby Lillian and Little Evelyn, in the principal roles.

Pieces to matinee have been placed at 10 and 25 cents; children 10 cents to all parts of the house. "Grimm's Tales" great comedy drama "The World" will be given for the farewell bill tonight.

Another Small Shooting Affray.

A shooting affray occurred down the line early this morning. A lumberman from near Truckee, named W. E. Lube, was assaulted by a gang of toughs in front of the Del Paso saloon.

After he had stood tough handling for a while he turned his gatling loose and dispersed his assailants. Luke was arrested by officers McNeilly and O'Haver, but, after examination, was turned loose.

ANOTHER WEDDING

Charles Gates of Wadsworth Wins a Reno Bride.

Chas. F. Gates of Wadsworth and Miss Nettie M. Benson of this city were married Thursday at the home of the bride's sister, Mrs. Chas. Burnett.

Rev. Thomas McGill was the officiating clergyman. Miss Mary Benson attended the bride and the groomsmen was F. E. B. Gates.

The wedding was a quiet one, only relatives being present. Many handsome presents were received by the bride. After the ceremony the dining room doors were thrown open, where a bountiful collation awaited the wedding party.

The bride is well-known in Reno. She was graduated from the Nevada University in the class of '97 and during the past two years she taught the public school in Brown's district. The groom is also well-known here, having been a resident of Reno several years. He has been in the employ of the Southern Pacific Company for the past five years as fireman. He is now firing the flar from Wadsworth to Carson.

Mr. and Mrs. Gates left for San Francisco, where they will spend their honeymoon, after which they will return to Wadsworth and begin house keeping.

Will Organize a Swell Band.

Prospects are bright for the organization of a band in this city that will "beat" anything in the State and rival the best on the coast. There is splendid musical talent in the town, but there has been so much going and coming in the past that the best materials were not obtained from the material on hand.

Prof. Smith, late leader of the Nevada State Band at Carson, will be the leader and he is without peer. Arthur Rye, cornet soloist, and T. Mara, B flat bass, of that organization, will also make Reno their home and will blow themselves in this band.

A meeting was held the other evening and thirty-five musicians reported for engagement. Organization will soon be completed and practice will begin immediately.

Almost a Fire.

An in-ipient blaze caused a little excitement on Virginia street last night. During the high wind about 9 o'clock a sheet of paper blew under the pay window at the People's restaurant. A jump of a clear came into contact with it and soon there was a merry blaze. A few buckets of water squared the matter.

Drowned in the Lake.

George Tate, a colored man who jumped from the train the other night while on his way to his home in Virginia, has been found dead. He evidently was in a dejected condition and wandered off to Washoe lake, where he was drowned. The inquest was held yesterday and the verdict was accidental death.

Neat Little Place.

The Hoffman is one of the most tastefully appointed saloons in Reno. It is located under the Bank of Nevada. The boxes are four in number and are separated from the bar. There are two family entrances to the boxes. W. A. Knapp, the proprietor, is conducting this place in true city style.

Thrown from Wheel.

Claude Mershon was heavily thrown yesterday during the five mile handicap race. He collided with Hart. The latter was not dismounted. Mr. Mershon was rendered unconscious for a moment, but the doctors patched him up and he is now as fit as a game cock.

An Interesting Story.

We think it is, when we tell you about our wall papers, their design and beauty of finish, the prices are interesting anyhow. Porteous Decorative Co.

TO PARENTS AND STUDENTS.

Straining the eyes while studying means inflamed eyelids, headaches, nervousness, cross eyes, muscular weakness and thousand other defects. Parents should help to make studying a pleasure for children, instead of a task, by taking them to the Frank Golden Jewelry Company and having their eyes properly examined to see if there is any defect in the eyesight.

SERVICES IN MEMORIAM

WITH fitting ceremonies the people of Reno paid tribute to the memory of their martyred President. Early on the day the school children of this city assembled in the High School building. In each room services were held.

Principal Bray called the audiences to order at 9 o'clock and made a brief introductory address. He was followed by R. L. Fulton, who spoke at length on the life and character of President McKinley, the terrible tragedy by which his life was ended and the lessons to be drawn from the personal life of the martyr.

Mrs. C. T. Bender in simple, touching language spoke to the primary pupils. She likewise paid tribute to McKinley, telling of his kindly and lovable traits and illustrated her address with numerous anecdotes.

Other rooms were addressed by Rev. Dr. Phelps and Rev. C. B. Chase. Their remarks were extemporaneous and feelingly delivered. The exercises in the public schools throughout were of an impressive nature. At the conclusion of the services many of those present went up the hill to attend the memorial mass meeting in the University gymnasium. Fully a thousand people were gathered in the large auditorium representing, as they did, every class and creed, united for a common purpose.

Sad, indeed, was the large audience of over one thousand persons, who crowded every available space in the Gymnasium Hall, at the Nevada State University, at which time was paid the last loving tribute of the people of Reno to the memory of the slain chief of the nation.

The ceremonies were of the most impressive character and were participated in by the clergy of all the religious denominations of the city.

On all sides were the emblems of woe, the trappings of grief; sorrow, deep, sincere and inexpressible, was depicted on every countenance and grief hung as a heavy pall of gloom over the entire audience. The solemnity of the occasion was emphasized in the decorations.

Around the walls of the large gymnasium were heavy draperies of black caught up into festoons and held in place by wreaths of ivy and white satin ribbon. Over the center of the platform, appeared the beloved face of the martyred President; while above the portrait and at each side were the emblems of our freedom under which and for which gallantly he fought, not now proudly flaunting to the breeze in the joys of victory, but folded and draped in the garb of woe.

The decorations of the gymnasium were under the direction of Superintendent Richard Brown and he was assisted by Mr. Porteous and some of the ladies of the faculty. On the platform were seated the President of the day, the Honorable Ben F. Currier, and those gathered to deliver the memorial addresses: President J. B. Stubbs of the University and Hon. Francis G. Newlands. Beside these were the following named members of the clergy: Rev. Chas. E. Chase, Rev. Father Reynolds, Rev. W. C. Driver, Dr. J. W. Phelps and Rev. Unsworth.

Judge B. F. Currier officiated as President of the day.

The program opened with music by the Cadet Band. An invocation was offered by the Rev. S. Unsworth, followed by prayer by Rev. Father Reynolds.

Judge Currier made a moving address, speaking in part as follows:

The speaker told of the sorrow that overwhelms the eighty millions of people under the American flag over the fell act of the assassin. He deplored the act, not only for the disgrace which has come a third time to the country, but because of the magnitude of the character which was cut down. The meetings held all over the land on the day of mourning would be productive of good, as they would serve to bring forth the noble points in a people's manhood and impress upon the hearts of all a desire to emulate these traits.

Judge Currier related at the outset of the nation which permitted of the breaking down of party walls and the sinking into oblivion of party prejudices at a time like this. He related over the brotherhood of nationality and the kinship caused by sorrow. He said that the garb of mourning was not worn in America alone, but that all civilized peoples were sorrowing over the death of the chief executive of the United States. As a representative of the bench he urged upon his hearers the necessity to support the law and withhold sympathy from anarchistic movements, which would correct alleged or imaginary wrongs, by committing real and terrible wrongs by deeds of violence.

In closing the speaker spoke briefly of the home life of President McKinley as something to be emulated by all.

At the conclusion of Judge Currier's remarks the hymn, "O God, Our Help," was sung by the choir and congregation.

There was a scriptural reading by Rev. W. C. Driver and a prayer by Dr. Phelps. The chant, "De Profundis" was rendered by the choir.

Mr. Newlands said in part: It is but fitting that today, when our President is borne to his last resting place, we should meet together and add our voice to the funeral chorus of lamentation that is heard throughout the civilized world. Our President is dead; not yours, not mine, not the Republican, not the Democratic President, but our President. A united people, forgetful of all differences and conscious of only a universal woe, meet in this sad hour to share a common sorrow, the harrowing details of this last week you all know; the brave fight for life, the wonderful patience and fortitude; the unflinching tenderness for his suffering wife, a solicitude carried to the very portals of the grave, and finally the submission to the inevitable with the dying words, "God's will, not ours, be done." How sublime the spectacle, and how breathlessly every American followed the changeless scenes of that awful tragedy.

And yet this man, the product of the most magnificent scheme of political and governmental reform ever inaugurated, the free choice of an intelligent democracy lying only by their will, fell the victim of a doctored so-called social reform, belonging to that class of misguided men who think that the reform of social abuses is to be accomplished not by slow and patient processes, but by the violent destruction of those in authority, and whose blow is aimed not only at the sovereign who claims by Divine Right and who regards himself as the source of all power, but also at the presiding Magistrate of a free people, who regards the people as the source of all power and himself as the servant and not the ruler of the Republic.

The national contests of late years, and the candidates presented in them, indicate thoroughly the general purity, honesty and straightforwardness of the American Democracy and constitute a vindication of popular government. Apart from all partisan feeling it would be hard to find men more exemplary in their private lives; purer, more honest and trustworthy; more devoted to high ideals than the men who have been of late years most prominently before the people in both parties and of whom the martyred President and the living President are types.

The prominence of such men in both parties indicates that however parties may differ in the policies relating to the advancement of our country, and the preservation of our government and liberties, they are united in admiration of all that constitutes substantial character, and they are determined that their rulers shall be pre-eminent for purity and honesty of life, and yet it is against such men, elevated to power by the people, as well as against the crowned heads of Europe claiming power of their own right that the danger of the assassin is raised with undiscriminating rage. That the American people will take up this question of the anarchistic propaganda and settle it with American thoroughness I cannot doubt.

You have just heard from eloquent lips of Mr. McKinley's varied ability, his high patriotism, his lofty ideals and his public and private virtues, and there is little that I could say which would not be a repetition of what has already been well said, but there is a view in which Mr. McKinley has not as yet been presented to you, and that is in his relations with the opposition party which antagonized the policies which he maintained. At Washington, the members of the opposition in the discharge of their duties, are necessarily brought in contact with the Executive and in his relations with them Mr. McKinley showed rare tact and judgment. No man could come within reach of Mr. McKinley without feeling his personal charm. He was simple, unaffected, cordial, and his face clearly showed that no unworthy feeling or passion dwelt in the man. So strong was this feeling of personal respect and friendliness which he inspired, that although the contest involved in the eyes of the opposition the abandonment of traditions of government long asserted and maintained by the American people, it was difficult for his political opponents in their speeches to refer to him with acrimony. In the few cases in which bitter personal attack took place, it was plain that there was no sympathy with it even among the opposition. Indeed, it was difficult to maintain active and vigilant opposition in Washington owing to the personal friendliness felt for the President. In the eyes of the opposition Mr. McKinley was generally dis-associated from the policies, however, objectionable to them, which he represented.

Whilst difference of view still prevails as to our right, constitutional or not, to hold in subjection and control an alien, race seven thousand miles away, there can be no question at the high character of Mr. McKinley did much to blunt the opposition to the unlimited and unrestrained power so claimed. Unlimited power is a his hands meant, in the popular judgment, at the worst only a benevolent despotism which would be exercised with a sacred regard for the advancement of humanity, and the character of the power was lost sight of in contemplating the benevolent face of the man who was first to exercise it. Mr. McKinley was willing to accept unlimited power because he felt and knew that he would not abuse it. He did not desire unlimited power because he wished to exercise it uncontrolled. He did not invite restraints upon this power lest they might prevent beneficent action. At the close of the war, his appointments to places or responsibility were of the highest character, and it was this that did much to recommend his Philippine policy. The first institution of unlimited power was so just and reasonable, and his humanitarian purpose so evident, that they served to dull the edge of criticism and opposition, and those of us who continue to oppose those policies since the close of the war, upon grounds founded in the traditions of the country, its historical devotion to individual liberty and abhorrence of unlimited power, are left, or the present at least, so far as the exercise of that power is concerned, to apprehension rather than realization of evil administration.

As a party leader, Mr. McKinley

MINING IN THIS STATE

Culled News of Nevadas' Most Important Industry.

Challenge was yesterday assessed 5 cents per share.

A run of 18,000 pounds of ore was taken from the Joana mine in the Comstock district which yielded $120 to the ton, says the White Pine News.

On the placer ground near the Robust mill, Ely, the Beal core drill is doing some splendid work, going down at the rate of about sixteen feet a day.

A force of men has been put to work on the Thoroughbred mine near Ely. At the White Rock placers in Elko county a flume is being constructed and sluicing will soon begin.

The Delamar Lode says that George Betterman has secured complete control of the Magnolia mine near Delamar, has put on a full force of day and night men and will work the mine to its full extent.

The ores in Copper King District average about equal in copper, silver and nickel. This combination makes it hard to separate the metals, but the ore is in large bonanzas and will be cheaply mined hereafter.

Murray Dunham of Ely has secured a bond for a San Francisco Syndicate on the following list of claims: The Copper Hill group of four claims. The Augusta group of five claims. The Dobbins group of three claims and The Fogg group of two claims. Active operations will be commenced immediately on all the above named groups.

It is rumored that the mines of the Quartzette Mining Company are soon to be taken over by an English Company. The amount involved in the transfer is said to be in the neighborhood of $800,000. These mines are numbered among the largest and richest gold properties in the State, and are in an excellent state of development.

During the past week J. B. Simpson, P. C. Webber, E. Hardy, L. C. Doty, W. N. McGill and W. G. Lyons located seven claims in the Copper Zone, lying north of Copper Flat and adjoining the claims recently located by Mrs. Shepherd. Negotiations have been entered into for the use of the Beal Core Drill, and with the use of this machine the properties will be tested. They are admirably located, and, it is believed, will prove themselves valuable.

Told by Pain

If you have pains you should look after them quickly. Pain shows something is wrong. The sharper the pain the more danger there is in delay. There are thousands of women today who are bearing awful pain almost continually, rather than tell a physician about the aching pains in their lower abdomen, about the agony of falling of the womb and the distress of leucorrhoea. They let the months pass and their trouble becomes harder to cure and more distressing. But modest women can secure exemption from the embarrassment of a private examination. When pain tells them of danger they can cure themselves by the use of in the privacy of their homes. You can be cured without distressing publicity. With these facts before you there is no reason for the delay which is increasing your misery and wasting the days of your life. Why not stop the pain today?

I have used one bottle of Wine of Cardui and one package of Theodor's Black-Drain. Before I began to take your medicine I had pains in my back, hips, lower bowels and my arms. Sometimes I thought I would go blind. My head ached and I was so weak I could hardly walk across the room. Now I can only feel a little of the pain in my waist and I am going to use your medicine until I get cured, for I believe they will certainly cure me. I have been married twelve years and am the mother of seven children. I thank you for your wonderful medicine and what it has done for me.

NIGHT OF TERROR.

"A fearful anxiety was felt for the widow of the brave General Burnham of Machias, Me., when the doctors said she would die from Pneumonia before morning" writes Mrs. S. H. Lincoln, who attended her that fearful night, but she begged for Dr. King's New Discovery, which had more than once saved her life, and cured her of Consumption. After taking, she slept all night. Further use entirely cured her." This marvelous medicine is guaranteed to cure all Throat, Chest and Lung Diseases. Only 50 cents and $1. Trial bottles free at S. J. Hodgkinson's drug store.

WORKING NIGHT AND DAY.

The busiest and mightiest little thing that ever was made is Dr. King's New Life Pills. These pills change weakness into strength, listlessness into energy, brain-fog into mental power. They're wonderful in building up the health. Only 25 cents per box. Sold by S. J. Hodgkinson, druggist.

was wise. He never sought to advance his own individuality by antagonizing his party. His party realized that he was their leader, because they had selected him; that his conscience was the party's conscience, and his action he party's action, and that his word and action simply crystallized his party's will. He realized that whilst individually he might be more prominent in the world's eyes by reason of a certain egotism which would place him above and apart from his party, a successful administration involved thorough amalgamation of his own views with those of his associates and followers and that union of view meant more in the way of substantial success than strong individuality or spectacular originality.

It is safe to say that no President at the time of his death possessed so general a popularity as Mr. McKinley. Concerning most of our great Presidents there was a divided sentiment during their lives, and history alone has brought to them the universal affection which they deserved, but McKinley has enjoyed a contemporaneous popularity almost as universal. His life and character represented virtues that were easily understood and easily appreciated, and for the personal character of the man there has been nothing but admiration and affection. The world's history is made so quickly; even follows with such untiring haste that we can recall within limited space the burials of Queen Victoria, the late Czar of Russia and great general Victor Hugo, as well as the victims of anarchy, President of France, King Humbert of Italy and the Empress of China. All have been buried with that excess of pomp and pageantry, which characterizes European nations, which Europe has as a last tribute to those it honors. Victor Hugo, strong in the purity of his fame, asked in his will to be buried in a pauper's coffin, but once, before he was laid to rest, he was borne to his tomb by the Arch of Triumph and there for two nights, surrounded by the National Guard, with neral fires shedding their light from all sides, all Paris kept vigil. You can call the splendid obsequies of the dead of England, not long since, sad processions have left their printing, but I think William McKinley's home to his tomb by the American people with the quiet sadness that characterizes a sorrowing people, carries a force of remembrance far greater than any of these. William McKinley is gone out of our lives, but he has left a resting place in our memories, here he will always be held in honor of love. On this sad day, millions of people, profoundly moved by his life and death—with one accord cry out: Gentle Spirit and Farewell.

At the conclusion of Mr. Newlands' address the President's favorite hymn, "The one he chanted in the hour of death," was sung in a feeling manner by all present. "Nearer, my God, Thee, Nearer to Thee."

By far the most touching tribute, at least elevating in tone and sounding in tender sentiments, dedicated to the memory of the dead President, came from President Stubbs. Dr. Stubbs knew President McKinley personally; he knew him intimately. They had been intimately associated times of strife and contest, as well as when the good comradeship existed between them was not interrupted by the world and hurried relations of strenuous times. President Stubbs knew the gentle, refined, dignified, lovable and womanly life comrade of the President, and he knew the tender solitude and care for the beloved wife under all circumstances, which characterized the President's life. Knowing so well and so intimately the President's private and public life, he was fully qualified to lay before the light, the impressive minds of the people of Nevada, the touching story of the President's beautiful and elevating life and his honorable and unimpaired public career.

President Stubbs' address was a masterpiece of rhetoric and a laying of the heart. "McKinley," he said, "may be said to have been his own man. Coupled with the highest powers of statesmanship was a heart that at its human sympathy. His nature was best exemplified by the manner in which he sheltered, comforted and protected the fragile woman who stood at his side and his reverses. Side by side and hand by hand they trod the journey, he the sheltering oak, she the clinging vine."

Every one who came within the range of acquaintance or the sphere of leadership of the martyred President is taught but good to speak of the dead. He passed through trying times and difficult situations without wincing, making an enemy. Even his enemies honored him, except those little souls whose speech and action helped to incite the weakling who fired the fatal bullet. They were unreasoning in their criticisms and baseless in their charges.

The speaker had a personal knowledge of the martyred President and upon more than one occasion had peeped into his inner self and knew him to be a man of spotless honor, of unswerving loyalty to his country and of simple, useful Christian character. More would be given of the address by President Stubbs were it not that it is remarkable will soon be published in their entirety. Dr. Stubbs' address was followed by the hymn, "Our Fathers' God, to Thee," which the choir and congregation jointly joined.

Last upon the program was the Lord's Prayer and benediction by Rev. Chas. E. Chase.

An impressive feature of the memorial exercises was the sounding of taps on the corner by Richard Tobin at about the exact moment when the body of the President was placed within the mausoleum. As the sad, sweet, mournful strains sounded through the building there was many an eye from which rolled irrepressible tears.
